

In the words of our Alumni

"I remember clearly from my earliest days here walking into class, shaking the teachers hand and looking into their eyes. You're taught here from such an early age that this is fundamental to a good relationship -- connecting. It doesn't matter how old you are or how many degrees you have, those aspects are still essential."

Emily Bennetts-Class of '03

Marist College '12

"My Montessori years were spectacular ... It was here that I discovered who I was as an individual. Montessori has given me self-confidence, a kind of ease in communication with both children and adults, the ability to think, ponder, discover, comprehend, and love the entire process. Montessori has given me a love of learning, that nothing is capable of extinguishing. I have learned to reach past the barrier of the common and well known, and not to be frightened by the unknown that requires thought."

Delphine D'Amora-Class of '02

Philips Exeter Academy '07- University of Chicago '11

"What exists in a Montessori education is a profound and grounded formation of an individual. Part of what's inherent in the process is respect and the love of all the intricate pieces of whatever it is that you chose to study. The whole idea of being able to choose something and pursue it until you're satisfied is an amazing thing because you never get stuck in something that's discouraging. If you're doing something you love, when you get to a point of difficulty it only makes it more exciting because you're involved in a process that you really want to see all the way through."

Dagan Reinhardt-Class of '97

Florida State University '06